WASHINGTON—More than a thousand persons have asked Seth Thomas, AAA solicitor for a copy of the Myers report on the treatment of share-croppers by cotton plantation owners.

To every request Thomas has said no. Official reason given for refusal is that the report deals with a legal case which is nobody's business while the AAA is preparing prosecution.

Actually the report deals with much more. It covers particularly the growth of unionism and communism among agricultural workers.

Meanwhile, the plight of the Southern share-cropper continues to be severe. It has become a problem not only for the Department of Agriculture but also for the Federal Relief Administration.

They find their relief rolls mounting in Southern States, and want to know whether this results from cotton tenants being dispossessed.

Harry Hopkins has sent a specialist into the field to make an intensive study of the whole farm tenant situation.

He is careful to avoid saying at the cotton reduction program under the direction of his good friend Chester Davis has aggravated his relief problem.

He is making no charges. But he wants the facts.

Kidded

Sol Rosenblatt, hard-working NRA Enforcement Officer, was explaining to members of the Lumber Code Authority why the Government had decided not to try rigid enforcement.

"Frankly we don't believe in some of the provisions in this code," he said. "There is use, therefore, to kid ourselves that the Government is going to try to enforce them."

"Well," interrupted David Mason, chairman of the Authority. "You have been kidding us lumbermen for 18 months."

Farm Census

Results of the census of agriculture are awaited with expectancy. One item of special interest is the amount of farm mortgage debt.

Two of the 100 questions on the schedule were framed to deal specifically with this matter. But the results, when published, will not tell the whole story of farm mortgages.

A technicality in editing the schedules is causing the figure of mortgage debt to be scratched in hundreds of cases.

Instructions have been given to editors to scratch this item in cases where the farmer does not own all of the land or owns land elsewhere.

If, for example, a man owns 500 acres on which he carries a $30,000 mortgage, and owns 10 acres elsewhere, the $30,000 figure is scratched. That mortgage will not appear in the totals when the Census Bureau publishes its results.

Central Banking

It looks as if the famous central banking legislation which has been debated back and forth in banking circles since last summer, would die aborning in Congress.

Cause of the stagnation gets down to the condition in the House and Senate Banking Committees. The House Committee is composed chiefly of banking liberals who want to recast the banking system of the country so as to place full control in the hands of the Government.

But in the Senate Committee an opposite condition exists. Here such Old Guarders as Glass of Virginia, Adams of Colorado, Townsend of Colorado, hold control.

CONVICTS DEFY APPEAL TO GO BACK TO WORK

Strike of Over 1,000 Continues; Mrs. Allman in Inquiry

NO TROUBLE SEEN

Prisoners Protest Parole Board Activities

COLUMBUS, April 16—Faced with her first crucial problem since she assumed office three months ago, Mrs. Margaret Allman, Ohio's state welfare director, visited Ohio penitentiary today to make a first-hand study of the situation arising from the strike of 1,000 convicts protesting what they declare "an inadequate parole system."

Mrs. Allman conferred briefly with Warden James C. Woodard after which she announced confidence that the prison head, who was named to his post last February following the ouster of the veteran Warden Preston E. Thomas, "has the situation well in hand."

No Disturbances

The strike, called yesterday by convicts working in the prison factories, was resumed today despite the appeal of the warden to "go back to work." The strike shaped up as a "passive resistance campaign." No disturbances were reported.

Apprehensive of developments, Warden Woodard ordered between 15 and 20 night guards to remain at their posts, augmenting the regular day force, for a brief time this morning. As it became apparent that the convicts were merely of a mind to hold their strike to passive means, the warden dismissed the night guards.

While the striking convicts were held in their cells after they refused to return to work in the prison factories, Warden Woodard set about arranging conferences with the leaders of the movement in an effort to compromise or arbitrate the situation.

Leaders of the strike explained to the warden that "we're not mad at you but we're sore at the parole board."

MANY MERCHANTS PARTICIPATING IN EASTER EGG HUNT

Plans are going forward for an interesting "egg hunt" Thursday and Friday with many of Circleville's uptown stores co-operating with The Herald to make the party a success.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the persons finding nearest the correct number of eggs in the windows of uptown stores on those days.

In Wednesday's Herald will appear advertisements of participating merchants. A contestant should take a copy of The Herald, visit the stores of the merchants, look into the windows and try to find as many colored eggs as possible. Each merchant participating will have a space in the newspaper with a line left vacant for the contestant to insert the number of eggs found there.

After the contestant has made the rounds he or she should make a bee-line for The Herald office to submit the answers. The deadline is 5 p. m. Friday. The first person submitting the nearest correct number of eggs will receive $3, the second $2 and the next five $1, so you see that efficiency and speed may win you some easy money.

The eggs will be placed in the store windows Thursday morning.

DOG LEADS SEARCH FOR YOUNG MATRON

Traces Society Woman, Missing Week, to Deserted House; Fear Amnesia Victim

FARMINGTON, Conn., April 16—Search for pretty Ann Gordon, 25, society matron strangely missing since last Wednesday night shifted abruptly today to Bloomfield with the discovery of a trail, believed to have been hers, by a large airdale dog.

"It is the first definite clue we have had," Constable Nathan Fuller, in charge of searches, said.

"Chuck," a trailing mountain airdale, owned by William A. Walsh of Jersey City, after being allowed to sniff a shoe Mrs. Gordon wore last Wednesday before her disappearance, picked up a trail in Bloomfield center nine miles from here.

"We took the dog to Bloomfield after he checked the dead-end trail found here last week by bloodhounds," Fuller said. "Several people in Bloomfield reported seeing a hatless coatless and apparently dazed woman in that town Wednesday night."

Taken to Deserted House Shortly after midnight this morning "Chuck" led his master and trainer, Max Hampele of Union City, two miles north of Bloomfield center to a deserted house where he gave many indications the person whom he was tracking had spent some time.

Police searched the house but found no traces of Mrs. Gordon. "Chuck" then picked up presumably the same trail and led the party a half mile down a back road to a cross road where at two o'clock this morning he appeared temporarily stalled and the searchers stopped.

DRIVE AGAINST CHISELERS OPENS

COLUMBUS, April 16—Taking a determined offensive, Charles C. Stillman, Ohio's FERA administrator, today called upon prosecutors of all Ohio counties to unite in a concerted campaign to drive out "chiselers" from the state's relief campaign.

The appeal to the county prosecutors was issued through Colonel G. Yearick of Newark, president of the Ohio Prosecutor's association.

Yearick pledged the cooperation of his association and announced bulletins would be dispatched immediately to individual prosecutors throughout the state, urging their whole-hearted cooperation in the prosecution of cases involving "chiseling" on the relief administration.

Stillman, who was placed in command of Ohio's relief administration scarcely more than a month ago, indicated he would resort to every available means to crack a stinging whip over the heads of relief "chiselers."

Six of those who died today were sentenced by Moscow's new famous woman judge, Maria Kire-Eva. They were members of a band which committed 195 crimes in the past three years, including the killing of an assistant police chief of the first Moscow district.

CITY TO BALLOT ON 45-CENT GAS

NOTE CLAIMS CHILD SLAIN

Chicago Police Hunt In Cellars of Vacant Houses for Perrot Child

CHICAGO, April 16—While police dug for a possible grave today postal inspectors began a search for the writer of a letter which stated that Richard Max Perrot, 4 years old, is dead and buried in a basement near his home here.

Missing for ten days and believed kidnapped, the child has been the object of a far-flung hunt. Authorities are seeking a "thin man" as the abductor.

The unsigned letter, which was mailed Sunday in Buchanan, Mich., to Mr. and Mrs. Max Perrot, the grief-stricken parents, read:

"The body is buried in a basement of the neighborhood. All you have to do is dig. And this is the truth."

Folicemen began digging in the basements of several vacant houses in the neighborhood in an effort to locate a grave. In addition the north branch of the Chicago river was being dragged.

Postal authorities set about the task of tracing the letter writer.

WOMAN FLYER AFTER RECORD

Laura Ingalls Takes Off On Non-Stop Flight to New York

UNION AIR TERMINAL, Los Angeles, April 16—Laura Ingalls, intrepid girl flyer, hopped off here at 5:10 a. m., today on an attempted non stop flight to New York, seeking to break the existing record for women flyers.

Miss Ingalls' big Lockheed Jrion plane, loaded with 600 gallons of gasoline, was away to a perfect take-off after running almost the entire length of the long runway at the airport here.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed here when the sleek, black plane shot into the air just as the dark gave way to dawn.

Aided by Wind A weather report received just before Miss Ingalls climbed into the cockpit of her ship showed she would be favored by "a" winds the greater part of the distance on her record breaking attempt.

Miss Ingalls said she would fly by way of Albuquerque, N. M.; Amarillo, Tex.; Kansas City, Mo.; Cleveland and thence to New York.

Miss Ingalls' low wing monoplane is powered with a 550-horsepower Pratt & Whitney wasp motor the plane, equipped with a supercharger, and controllable pitch propeller is capable of a top speed estimated in excess of 225 miles per hour, at the cruising altitude of between 5,000 and 10,000 feet.

Record 17 Hours The plane in which the present women's transcontinental record was established by Amelia Earhart in 1933, was a high-wing Lockheed Vega. That plane, with a top speed of 190 miles per hour, crossed the continent for the present record of 17 hours, 7 minutes and 30 seconds.

CIVIC GROUP TOLD VALUE OF COURTS

Judge Day Urges Citizens to Exercise Rights; Praises Jury System

A plea for citizens of Ohio to exercise their right to vote and to use care in their selection of officials especially for the various courts of the state was made before the Kiwanis club Monday evening in an inspiring address by Arthur H. Day, of Cleveland, member of the supreme court of Ohio.

Judge Day, who spoke on "The Citizen and His Courts," built his address around the statement: "The power of a citizen at the ballot box is greater than any army."

Few Know Importance

"I doubt if the average citizen realizes the importance of the courts," Judge Day began his talk. "The court is the basic power, the keystone and the foundation of our representative government. The government, as you know, is divided into three branches, executive, legislative and judicial but the judicial is most important of all because that branch determines whether we have representative government."

Judge Day went on to explain the trend toward more universal study of politics and attributed one advantage of the depression in teaching Americans to study the political structure of the country and to become more interested in its operation. "We all suffered," he said, "but the depression taught us that we must depend upon others; that we cannot get along by ourselves."

That a person who went into politics seriously a few years ago was considered on the edge of the underworld was, stated by the judge.

He defended the jury system declaring that persons assailing the system were doing it for one of three reasons; ignorance, selfish motives or because it "seemed the popular thing to do."

Discusses Courts

He discussed briefly the courts of the state, common pleas, appellate, which he termed the first court of review, and supreme, the final court of review. The supreme court of the state was deemed more important to the average citizen than any other since but few cases affecting all ever reached the nation's highest tribunal.

"The opinions of the state supreme courts," he said, "become basic law because common pleas and appeals courts must follow the supreme court decisions."

Judge Day's address proved very interesting to his listeners. A number of guests and a new member, George Myers, attended the meeting.

Next Monday Judge Roy Williams, another member of the supreme court, will speak with a ladies' night to follow a week later.

Complicating factors entered into the case of William. Three years ago he suffered rheumatic fever, which affected his heart.

CHAMPAGNE CLUB SUPPORTS DAVEY

URBANA, April 16—Nickels, dimes and half-dollars aggregating $5.80 and donated by members of the Young Democratic Club of Champagne were sent today to Governor Davey to apply to his "rug fund."

"Our governor is right in everything he does; he has been unjustly criticized and a little pat on the back won't hurt him," the young Democrats resolved in a unanimous vote of confidence for Davey. "We are behind him 100 per cent," their resolution stated.

They were addressed by Ray Allison, assistant secretary of state and president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Ohio, who urged them to "pre-are now to take up the party's burdens tomorrow."

Allison announced a statewide meeting of young Democrats to be held in Columbus next June.

The committee, which employed Harry Riffe, warden. Riffe has been employed for some time at that capacity but the matter is now a matter of record.

CALL VOTE ON REFUND PLAN

House Taxation Committee Favors Refunder Over Davey's Measure

COLUMBUS, April 16—The Lawrence bond refund bill, which may be adopted by the Ohio legislature as a substitute for Governor Davey's proposed bond moratorium, was reported out today by the house taxation committee.

Before approving the measure the house committee amended it to permit cities to use a portion of the revenue from the sale of refund bonds for the purchase and retirement of maturing bonds.

Rep. Frank Uible (D) of Cleveland, majority floor leader, and author of the Davey moratorium bill, was an interested spectator at the tax committee session.

Uible said he does not know how Governor Davey will react to the suggestion that the Lawrence bill be substituted for the moratorium, nor could he say at this time whether the refund will be given precedence over the governor's bill on the house calendar.

"FEUD" LEADS TO ARREST OF FOUR

A south-end "feud" which has been climaxed with charges and counter-charges led three men to fines and another to acquittal after a trial in Mayor W. B. Cady's court.

Bernard Haynes, John McAbee and Deacon Hill were each fined $10 and costs by Mayor W. B. Cady in a hearing Monday night on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct. Hill was sent to the county jail while the others paid their fines. The charges were filed by Mrs. Dora Moss.

Haynes filed a charge of property destruction against Sherman Lowery but a trial resulted in Lowery's acquittal. His younger brother later admitted the charge. Haynes charged that Lowery had thrown rocks through windows of his automobile.

WOMAN FLYER AFTER RECORD

Laura Ingalls Takes Off On Non-Stop Flight to New York

UNION AIR TERMINAL, Los Angeles April 16—Laura Ingalls, intrepid girl flyer, hopped off here at 5:10 a. m., today on an attempted non stop flight to New York, seeking to break the existing record for women flyers.

Miss Ingalls' big Lockheed-Jr. plane, loaded with 600 gallons of gasoline, was away to a perfect take-off after running almost the entire length of the long runway at the airport here. Ideal weather conditions prevailed here when the sleek, black plane shot into the air just as the dawn gave way to dawn.

Aided by Wind
A weather report received just before Miss Ingalls climbed into the cockpit of her ship showed she would be favored by the wind the greater part of the distance on her record breaking attempt.

Miss Ingalls said she would fly by way of Albuquerque, N. M.; Amarillo, Tex.; Kansas City, Mo.; Cleveland and thence to New York.

Miss Ingalls' low wing monoplane is powered with a 550-horsepower Pratt & Whitney wasp motor the plane, equipped with a supercharger, and controllable pitch propeller is capable of a top speed estimated in excess of 225 miles per hour, at the cruising altitude of between 5,000 and 10,000 feet.

Record 17 Hours

The plane in which the present women's transcontinental record was established by Amelia Earhart in 1933, was a high-wing Lockheed Vega. That plane, with a top speed of 190 miles per hour, crossed the continent for the present record of 17 hours, 7 minutes and 30 seconds.

U. S. TO TRANSFER 1,500 TO ALASKA

WASHINGTON, April 16—Utilization of the army transport St. Mihiel as a "modern covered wagon" to carry America's 20th century pioneers to a new land of promise in Alaska was announced by Secretary of War Dern today.

The St. Mihiel will transport to Alaska approximately 1500 persons now on relief rolls in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The move represents part of the government's plan to help relieve unemployment by colonizing Alaska on a large scale.

More than 1,500 persons will be transported to Alaska to establish new homes. They will include approximately 200 families of settlers and, in addition, approximately 400 men from transient camps, who will help to build the new community and then return to the United States.

CIVIC GROUP TOLD VALUE OF COURTS

Judge Day Urges Citizens to Exercise Rights; Praises Jury System

A plea for citizens of Ohio to exercise their right to vote and to use care in their selection of officials especially for the various courts of the state was made before the Kiwanis club Monday evening in an inspiring address by Arthur H. Day, of Cleveland, member of the supreme court of Ohio.

Judge Day, who spoke on "The Citizen and His Courts," built his address around the statement: "The power of a citizen at the ballot box is greater than any army."

Few Know Importance

"I doubt if the average citizen realizes the importance of the courts," Judge Day began his talk. "The court is the basic power, the keystone and the foundation of our representative government. The government, as you know, is divided into three branches, executive, legislative and judicial but the judicial is most important of all because that branch determines whether we have representative government."

Judge Day went on to explain the trend toward more universal study of politics and attributed one advantage of the depression in teaching Americans to study the political structure of the country and to become more interested in its operation. "We all suffered," he said, "but the depression taught us that we must depend upon others; that we cannot get along by ourselves."

That a person who went into politics seriously a few years ago was considered on the edge of the underworld was stated by the judge.

Discusses Courts

He discussed briefly the courts of the state, common pleas, appellate, which he termed the first court of review, and supreme, the final court of review. The supreme court of the state was deemed more important to the average citizen than any other since but few cases affecting all ever reached the nation's highest tribunal.

"The opinions of the state supreme courts," he said, "become basic law because common pleas and appeals courts must follow the supreme court decisions."

Judge Day's address proved very interesting to his listeners. A number of guests and a new member, George Myers, attended the meeting.

Next Monday Judge Roy Williams, another member of the supreme court, will speak with a ladies' night to follow a week later.

OPENER DELAYED

COLUMBUS, April 16—Governor Martin L. Davey warned up his pitching arm yesterday for naught. Because of decidedly inclement weather which blanketed the Red Bird stadium ballfield here with snow, today's opening American Association game between the Columbus Red Birds and the Indianapolis Indians here was called off.

The governor was to have tossed in the first ball for the game, starting off the 1935 American Association championship race.

CALL VOTE ON REFUND PLAN

House Taxation Committee Favors Refunder Over Davey's Measure

COLUMBUS, April 16—The Lawrence bond refund bill, which may be adopted by the Ohio legislature as a substitute for Governor Davey's proposed bond moratorium, was reported out with a recommendation for passage today by the house taxation committee.

Before approving the measure, the house committee amended it to permit cities to use a portion of the revenue from the sale of refund bonds for the purchase and retirement of maturing bonds.

Rep. Frank Uible (D) of Cleveland, majority floor leader, and author of the Davey moratorium bill, was an interested spectator at the tax committee session. Uible said he does not know how Governor Davey will react to the suggestion that the Lawrence bill be substituted for the moratorium, nor could he say at this time whether the refund will be given precedence over the governor's bill on the house calendar.

CHAMPAIGN CLUB SUPPORTS DAVEY

"Governor Right in Everything he Does"; Donations Total $5.80 in Change

URBANA, April 16—Nickels, dimes and half-dollars aggregating $5.80 and donated by members of the Young Democratic Club of Champaign-co were sent today to Governor Davey to apply to his "rug fund."

"Our governor is right in everything he does; he has been unjustly criticized and a little pat on the back won't hurt him," the young Democrats resolved in a unanimous vote of confidence for Davey. "We are behind him 100 per cent," their resolution stated. They were addressed by Ray Allison, assistant secretary of state and president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Ohio, who urged them to "prepare now to take up the party's burdens tomorrow."

Allison announced a statewide meeting of young Democrats to be held in Columbus next June.

The commissioners, Monday, employed Harry Riffe as dog warden. Riffe has been serving in that capacity but the employment is now a matter of record.

FRUIT, GARDEN CROPS SUFFER IN COLD WAVE

Peaches, Cherries Hard Hit as Frigid Wave Strikes County

TEMPERATURE AT 23

Northern Ohio Scene of Much Damage

Damage to fruit garden and farm crops in Circleville, Pickaway-co and all central Ohio was believed certain by agricultural experts as a result of the unreasonable frigid spell which struck Monday night. Loss of many thousands of dollars is seen.

Orts and early fruit trees are hit hardest by the freezing temperatures but the wheat crop, farm bureau agents said, will not suffer unless the wave continues.

CLEVELAND April 16—The roaring, northwest gale which lashed the Great Lakes region throughout yesterday and last night, tying up lake shipping and automobile traffic, subsided today after doing damage estimated at thousands of dollars.

Northern Ohio was covered with two and one-half inches of snow and ice today. The mercury made a 34-degrees skid and was reported at 24 degrees at 6 o'clock. Weather bureau officials forecast no relief from the unexpected return engagement of winter before tonight or tomorrow.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 16—Nine-year-old William "Buddy" Spiegelblatt, of Newport, third child to undergo an operation at Truistead hospital for an upside-down stomach, died today.

A blood transfusion failed to save his life. He had been placed under an oxygen tent.

His case was described by doctors as more serious than that of Alyce Jane McHenry and Jimmy Nelson, both of whom underwent similar operations.

Complicating factors entered into the case of William. Three years ago he suffered rheumatic fever, which affected his heart.

ASHVILLE WATER PLANT NOW IN USE; PROJECTS TRACED

OFFICIALS STARTED ACTION IN JULY, 1933, FOR U.S. CASH

ASHVILLE, April 16—Water furnished by Ashville's municipal plant is now available and is being used by a number of the citizens, who speak in the highest terms of the quality of the water. Several who tested it for laundry purposes, claim it lathers freely and is almost as soft as rain water. When it is remembered that the only treatment given for the removal of iron from the water should be no hesitancy in using it for all purposes. The 100,000 gallon elevated tank is filled and water is now available through the mains in case of a fire.

Along the fore part of July, 1933, plans were formulated by Ashville council to secure federal assistance to install waterworks and sanitary sewage. A mass meeting of the citizens was called and the sentiment of a majority present favoring the plan, officials at once got busy and made application for $60,000 for waterworks and $40,000 for sewage. Action on the part of the government lagged for months, which is now not to be wondered at, as every safeguard had to be thrown around the expenditure of $100,000 of federal funds. After a year had passed and no action was in sight, the skeptical of our citizens expressed the opinion that Ashville, on account of its size would be left out in the cold.

The officers, who had put in countless hours of hard work on the projects and spurred on by the fact that our financial condition was A-1, we having no outstanding indebtedness and sufficient funds in the treasury for village needs, were optimistic and never doubted that the request would be turned down. Their opinions were correct and in August, 1934 bids were submitted for a waterworks system to cost approximately $30,000. Upon opening the proposal it was found that bids exceeded the estimate by between $5,000 and $6,000. In the setup which anticipated the contract would be awarded much earlier before material price advances, the government had allowed us $10,000 grant instead of the promised thirty per cent of costs of improvement. The request of council that the remaining $6,000 in grant be furnished us was granted and contracts awarded for the amended amount of $66,000. Bonds of the village in the amount of $48,000 and a mortgage on the water works plant was furnished and contracts awarded as follows:

E. C. Bartling & Son, main lines and services; Downing & Hetrick, iron removal plant; The Chicago Bridge and Iron Works, elevated tank.

These contracts were approved and signed about the middle of August but funds for the project were not made available promptly and work was not started until Oct. 16, when Bartling & Son broke ground on Long-st in front of the council chamber.

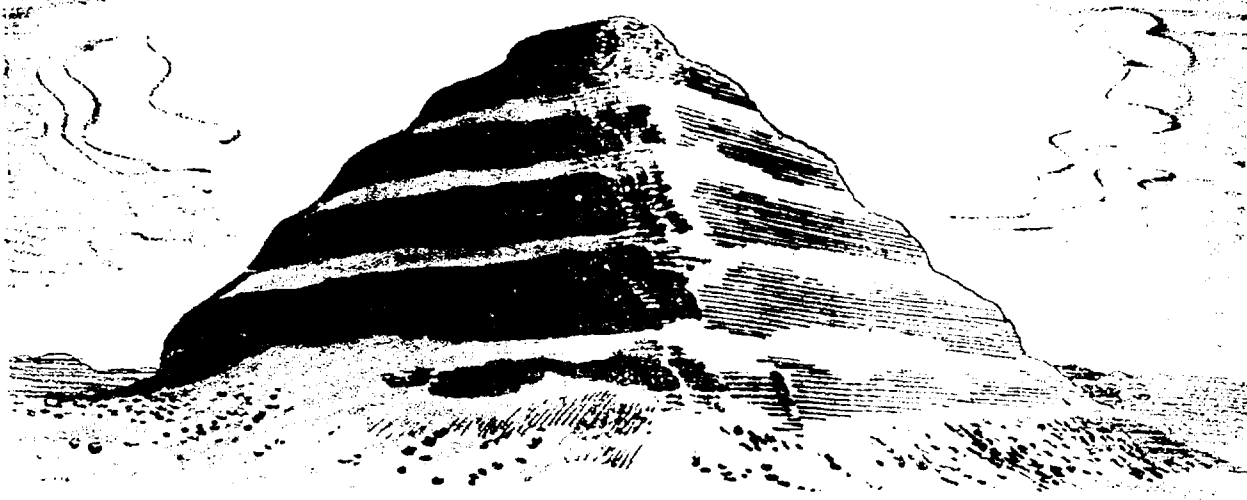

Since that eventful day there has been progressive action, retarded at times by weather conditions; and as a result the main lines and most of the 180 services are installed, with 50 additional services to be put in at the earliest time. The mains and the 100,000 gallon tank are filled to safeguard fire hazards and many families are already using the water. A second 10-inch well 79 feet in depth has been drilled, tested and accepted by the State Board of Health. Two pump houses and the iron removal plant is completed and about all that remains is the grading of the grounds.

The question of sanitary sewage, as originally, set up was on the assessment plan. This was later changed and submitted to the electors at the general election in November, 1934, for a reviewed bond issue in the sum of $32,000. The voters approved the plan by majority of more than 9 to 1. These bonds by special permission of the government were sold to the Teachers' Retirement association, the funds being made available on delivery of the bonds. The grant was not affected by this transaction.

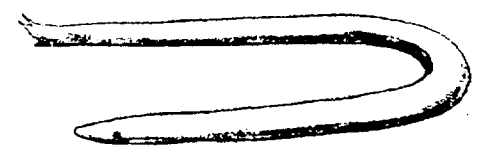

The contracts for sanitary sewer system at estimated cost of $40,000 was let November 19, 1934. C. J. Wetzel of Dayton, was low bidder on sewer construction and K. B. Stoner, Fincastle, Va., secured the disposal plant. Work was started at once on Contractor Wetzel did not begin work until the first week in January of this year, but has made much progress. The west side is completed except property services. Work is now being pushed two forces of workmen being employed thirty hours per week, and unless hindered by weather conditions it is expected to have main line and property services completed and ready for use within the next several months.

None of these on strike in the prison is considered of a dangerous type, Woodard said. He expressed confidence that the situation would be "negotiated" to a satisfactory conclusion. The strike crisis today, incidentally, comes within a week of the fifth anniversary of the Easter Monday prison fire in which 320 convicts lost their lives.

the tie-up of lake traffic would cost them thousands of dollars. The temperature started its near-record slide yesterday morning as snow squalls swept over the north end portion of the state.

CHICAGO, April 16—General cold overspread the central states today with freezing temperatures threatening severe damage to fruit and young field crops in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

Wintery gales swept the upper Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes region and the thermometer dropped to 26, tying the all-time record for the date here.

WOOSTER, April 16—Orchardists at the Wooster agriculture experiment station today reported heavy damage to fruit blossoms as the temperature dropped to the low mark of 19 degrees.

The orchardists, however, were hopeful that a sufficient number of buds escaped the effects of the weather to produce a fairly good crop.

C. W. Ellenwood, horticulturist at the station, reported that the apple crop, a major crop in this vicinity, was not badly damaged, although peaches, early cherries, and plums, may be hard hit.

Could Stand Cold
The recent cool weather delayed fruit development, it was pointed out, and the buds are better able to withstand cold than in many seasons.

Anker-Holth

Bowls hand-balanced by adding "patches of solder" inside the bowl-hood gradually go "out of balance" from the first day of use. At intervals, such bowls must be "exchanged" or sent back to the factory for re-balancing. All of the time such bowls are "out of balance" they LOSE CREAM.

Not so with the Challenger Anker-Holth. There is no bowl-balancing department at the Anker-Holth factory. The Anker-Holth bowl is SELF-BALANCING and its construction is patented. Anker-Holth users do not suffer "out of balance" cream losses.

SUPPOSE you were to start today with two cream separators—a Challenger Anker-Holth with its SELF-BALANCING bowl and another separator of the solder-patch kind. Assuming both cost the same when new, here is about the way the figures would work out in 25 years:

	Anker-Holth	Other Kind
First cost.....	$100.00	$100.00
Bowl balancing (four).....		100.00
Out-of-balance cream loss.....		62.50
New separators bought (two).....		200.00
Service reconditioning (three).....	65.00
Total for 25 years.....	$165.00	$462.50
Average PER YEAR.....	6.50	18.50

In above estimate we have figured re-balancing the solder-patch bowl each five years to keep "out-of-balance" cream losses down to minimum; the "out-of-balance" cream losses were figured at only $2.50 per YEAR even though tests show this has run that high per MONTH. ## WARNING

THERE is only ONE self-balancing bowl made in America—it is the Challenger Anker-Holth. Don't be confused by misleading terms, such as "self-centering," "balancing," etc. Here's how to tell—the users are numbered; the bowl is NOT self-balancing; the bowl can be put together in only one way; it is NOT self-balancing; there are patches of solder inside the hood; it is NOT self-balancing; it isn't an Anker-Holth; it is NOT self-balancing.

WE GUARANTEE the Anker-Holth bowl to re-BALANCE itself. WE GUARANTEE it need NEVER be returned to the factory to be balanced. There is NO balancing department in the modern Anker-Holth factory.

OFFICIALS STARTED ACTION IN JULY, 1933, FOR U. S. CASH

ASHVILLE, April 16—Water furnished by Ashville's municipal plant is now available and is being used by a number of the citizens, who speak in the highest terms of the quality of the water. Several who tested it for laundry purposes, claim it lathers freely and is almost as soft as rain water. When it is remembered that the only treatment given is for the removal of iron there should be no hesitancy in using it for all purposes. The 100,000 gallon elevated tank is filled and water is now available through the mains in case of a fire.

Along the fore part of July, 1933 plans were formulated by Ashville council to secure federal assistance to install waterworks and sanitary sewage. A mass meeting of the citizens was called and the sentiment of a majority present favoring the plan, officials at once got busy and made application for $60,000 for waterworks and $40,000 for sewage. Action on the part of the government lagged for months, which is now not to be wondered at, as every safeguard had to be thrown around the expenditure of $100,000 of federal funds. After a year had passed and no action was in sight, the skeptical of our citizens expressed the opinion that Ashville, on account of its size would be left out in the cold.

The officers, who had put in countless hours of hard work on the projects and spurred on by the fact that our financial condition was A-1, we having no outstanding indebtedness and sufficient funds in the treasury for village needs, were optimistic and never doubted that the request would be turned down. Their opinions were correct and in August, 1934 bids

the latter project but owing to large amount of water and repeated caveins progress was seriously retarded. However the contract was completed and accepted several months ago and is ready for service.

Contractor Wetzel did not begin work until the first week in January of this year, but has made much progress. The west side is completed except property services. Work is now being pushed two forces of workmen being employed thirty hours per week, and unless hindered by weather conditions it is expected to have main line and property services completed and ready for use within the next several months.

Following this division, they would pass the FRIC immediately, leaving the central bank idea for "later consideration." This would mean the death sentence for central banking.

GYPSY GIRL
THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
McDONALD FEADER
CHAPTER 36
FOR AN HOUR Consuelo and Doug drove in silence.
"Gypsy, don't you want to tell me what's the matter?" He was serious now.
She shook her head.
"Tell him about this white man who is his friend? Ah, no! Tell him this white dog has another woman and have him say, well what of it, you might have known. The dog! That is why a gypsy was not good enough until she put away her gypsy clothes.
That is why he is so busy and can't see me often. Little fool I am, little fool! She is his woman and she is star of the ballet. I am his woman and I am—pooh, one scene once on, not a dozen times! Ah, how I have been fooling myself. This a marble palace? This the high hill? It is a swamp, a swamp of lies!
I have been fascinated by this white man and by the gold that flows through his fingers like water. When I saw him that day beside the train he looked good to me. When I wanted to come to New York to get revenge on March I thought it would be part of that revenge to give my body to him. I did not reckon that I might be only making a fool of myself.
"You're shivering, baby." Doug took off his overcoat and wrapped it around her.
But March could laugh now! You sold yourself to me for a diamond and it was a piece of glass, he would say. You sold yourself to the white man for the palace on top of the hill and it was a hovel! Fool! You thought you could play this game of revenge and win. You should have stayed with the van and been my woman and danced at the country fairs and given me your purse of silver when you had finished. I would love you and I would beat you but I would not take another woman
as this white dog has done.
Bitter thoughts! The girl bent her head in her hands and the tears flowed down her cheeks.
Doug's arms were about her.
"Now, my darling, don't cry! Oh, gee, but I love you, Consuelo. I love you. I could kill the person who has hurt you like this!"
She did not hear him.
She is his girl and she is star of the show. I am his girl and I am nothing!
"Now is my heart crying out within me that I have been such a bad one.
Now is my heart crying out for Girtza and the tenderness of his arms. Now is my heart crying out for the comfort of the forest and the brooks and the good cool earth beneath me. The rumble of the van—music, the sound of Roman—oh Lord! How lonesome I am. March, this revenge I took upon you is bitter—bitter! I can't endure it longer!
I go back to my people tomorrow.
The hope that rose within her died.
Back to the van—trailing home in shame! March to kill you—or worse, to spit upon you and in spite turn his eyes upon another woman.
Anica to laugh. Papa to hide his head with pain. And you, the Gypsy Consuelo, to admit defeat! No! No!
No!
You came to New York to dance.
Have I forgotten that? What does this pettiness of love concern you, then? What business of yours is it that this white man has another girl? Perhaps all white men have.
That is quite all right—except the fact that she stands first. How do you like that insult? You come from a line of gypsies where their women have been famed for beauty;
where the richest prices have been

FIXIN' UP THE PLACE
IT WOULD BE A work of love and of an expert mathematician even to estimate the foot tons of human energy involved. For householders, either personally or by hired substitutes, are busy these days raking off the mulch, inspecting what is left of the perennials, burning the old leaves and generally emerging from the long sleep of winter.

Needless to say, it is a lot of fun. Tidying up the place is a continuous endeavor, just a bit of fun, just a bit of fun, just a bit of fun.
A dignified gentleman of less or more adipose development seizes a rake and (for a while) goes through the motions of being a hardy son of the soil, later to take up a dignified position (usually sitting down) on the front porch while the younger folk go to it.
It is a never-ending source of amazement to the householder to find out what an immense amount of utterly useless truck gets itself spread abroad over the place during a not-so-difficult winter.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding it is great to be a husbandman —in April. It is not so thrilling when July comes and the wedding is at its height, but a delightful now, especially if some one else does it.

THE LESSON IN A MASTER
THE TWO hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Johann Sebastian Bach, celebrated recently, came at a time when the public was better able than ever before to appreciate the work of this great musical composer, who many believe was the greatest of them all. Bach has always had his worshippers but his music has been widely assumed to be beyond the appreciation of the musically untrained. Even his own generation, and those immediately following, did not rate him at his full worth. Mendelssohn, a century later, is given credit for making the musical world understand what a great creative artist Bach was. Schumann said music owes almost as great a debt to him as a religion owes to its founder.

Lately appreciation of Bach has grown to the proportion, but not the ephemeralness, of a vogue. That is largely due to the expanding understanding and enjoyment of music. Every way we turn, music is in the air; some good, some bad, some commonplace. We hear so much of it that the commonplace pall. Only great music will stand constant repetition. So the great masters come into their own.

There is a lesson in Bach's history for those who are interested in the development of music. It took five generations of musicians to produce him. His great-grandfather, Veit Bach, is generally considered the creator of the Bach musical tradition. He was a baker and miller who played the zither to the accompaniment of his millstones. Veit's son, Hans, a carpet maker by trade, made music his profession. Hans' genius descended through his son and grandson, to Johann Sebastian, in whom it flowered most brilliantly.

It will take more than one generation to produce a musical America. But we are on our way. American talent is about to receive greater encouragement. With patience and steadiness this development can go far and fast.

The situation in Europe seems to be about normal. The cables tell us that chaos reigns.

Yet the man who ran away from home at 16 now wonders why his son of 22 is so hard to control.

When justice rules the land, the motorist with the glaring headlights will be lined up with his back to the wall in the cold gray dawn of morning.

Sir Phillip Gibbs, author of "Now it Can Be Told," has been barred from Germany, and perhaps he's fortunate, with all this business of deception going on.

The consumption of soap is reported to be increasing in Russia and by the time two or three more five-year plans have been completed it will probably catch up to the actual needs of the country.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Jennie Belle Hurley, 62,

The population of Amanda, as

as compared to 531 in 1920.

Inside knowledge of current

TED COMES HOME

Circleville people are always glad to welcome Ted Lewis (Theo.
Friedman), who drops in occasionally to visit the home folks and mingle with his many friends here.
Ted is a home-town boy whose name has been in the bright lights from coast to coast, from Broadway to Hollywood, for several years, and is one of the few of his chosen profession whose popularity does not diminish with the years.

When Ted comes home he does not go into seclusion. He goes from door to door in the business section, greeting his old friends, laughing, joking, remembering incidents of his boyhood days, and good-naturedly prying into the affairs of his personal friends trying to find out what mischief they've been engaged in since his last visit. You are just as liable to find him having a "kidding" bee with a shoe polisher as you are to find him in diffident conversation with the town's most influential citizens.
This is the old home town to him and he enjoys his visits here. His wit and humor have been sharpened by his years of contact with celebrities in all walks of life, but when he gets among home folks he is just a Circleville boy again, anxious to see everybody that he has ever known, regardless of race, color, creed, social standing or size of the bank roll.

He dropped in last week for a few days and was about the business man in town until he had been everywhere and seen everybody. And I'll wager to that he got more enjoyment out of it than he would have anywhere else in the world in the same length of time.

The two little girls were playing house together when the little brother of one of them came along and desired to play with them.

They did not want him, but the grownups were insistent.

"All right, then," they said,
"you can be the little boy that got lost and never came back."

THE ONE GRAY HAIR

The wisest of the wise
Listen to pretty lies,
And love to hear them told;
Doubt not that Solomon Listened to many a one Some in his youth, and more when he grew old.

I never sat among
The choir of Wisdom's song,
But pretty lies loved I
As much as any king.
Wiser youth was on the wing,
And must it then be told? When youth had quite gone by.

Alas! and I have not
The pleasant hour forgot.
When one pert lady said—
"O Landor! I am quite bewildered with affright;
Be silent quiet now! a white hair
on your head!"

Another, more benign,
Drew out that hair of mine,
And in her own dark hair
I extended had found
That one, and twirled it round—
For as she was, she never was so kind.

Editorial Of The Day

FRIEND OF THE DARK ANGEL
(Madison County Press)

The average motorist, however modest he may be in other respects, becomes an egomaniac as soon as he takes the wheel of his car.

He believes that traffic regulations should be rigidly enforced—
so far as other drivers are concerned, but that he should be an exception to the rule. John Jones should be forced to keep down to 20 or 30 miles an hour, but he, whose abilities are hardly second to those of Sir Malcolm Campbell, can be trusted to drive as fast as he pleases.

The accident statistics demonstrate how tragically wrong this average motorist is. Nine out of ten accidents occurring last year were directly the fault of drivers or pedestrians. In only one out of ten was the mechanical condition of the car to blame. And in the overwhelming majority of instances the factor that led to the mishap was excessive speed. The best proof of that lies in the fact that the rate of death per accident on highways where speeds are naturally higher than on streets was more than 100 per cent greater than the average for all accidents combined. In city accidents, the rate of death per accident was 52 per cent worse between intersections, where motorists speed up, than at intersections, where the bulk of drivers instinctively slow down.

North, 7-Clubs; South, 7-Spades; West, doubled. The question is, what should East lead? He led the 8 of spades, and West "only smiled."

Physiological Diagnosis Tests Functional Capacity

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE FINAL step in summing up the diagnosis of a particular individual is to try to decide what his functional capacity is. Most physicians are anatomical.

We say that the heart is enlarged, the valves are damaged, or that the thyroid gland is diseased, or that there is a stone in the kidney, etc., but the greatest refinement comes in deciding how much work this damaged organ
can do. We know that a badly damaged heart may serve its owner
for many years.

Everyone knows of such cases. We had hearts at an autopsy so diseased that it is a matter of marvel that the man could have lived at all,
and yet he did, doing a fair amount of work.

The decision as to this functional capacity or, in other words, this physiological diagnosis, has been in the past largely upon the clinical judgment and experience of the physician, but we are finding methods of exact measurement which bid fair to be increasingly important. Measurement is the final test of science, and no science made much growth until it began to have standards of measurement.

Thus, I received the other day, a report of the young army surgeon who took care of Napoleon at St.
Helen during his last illness. He records that the Emperor's body heat was high or low, but he gave no exact measurements because the digital thermometer had not yet been perfected.

Clinical medicine has been borrowing instruments from the physiological laboratory for the purpose of making these more exact measurements of functional capacity. One of the first that we borrowed was the blood pressure apparatus. Another recent one was the apparatus for measuring basal metabolism. Basal metabolism is the total energy exchange of the body, and is measured by the amount of oxygen which it consumes per square area of body surface. We have found, especially in activity of the thyroid gland, that the basal metabolism is high, and that when it degenerates the basal metabolism is low. This is true because the thyroid is the regulator of energy exchange.

Another method of physiologic examination is that of the irregularities of the pulse and the integrity of the conduction system of the heart muscle. This is done by a delicate indicator of galvanic electricity called the "electrocardiograph". A tracing of the heart's action can be made upon a roll of photographic film so that an extremely good idea of what is taking place inside the heart can be obtained.

FIXIN' UP THE PLACE

IT WOULD BE A work of love and of an expert mathematician even to estimate the foot tons of human energy involved. For householders, either personally or by hired substitutes, are busy these days raking off the mulch, inspecting what is left of the perennials, burning the old leaves and generally emerging from the long sleep of winter.

Needless to say, it is a lot of fun. Tidying up the place is a continuous endeavor, just now seemingly at one of its climaxes.

A dignified gentleman of less or more adipose development seizes a rake and (for a while) goes through the motions of being a hardy son of the soil, later to take up a dignified position (usually sitting down) on the front porch while the younger folk go to it.

It is a never-ending source of amazement to the householder to find out what an immense amount of utterly useless truck gets itself spread abroad over the place during a not-so-difficult winter.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding it is great to be a husbandman—in April. It is not so thrilling when July comes and the weeding is at its height, but a delightful now, especially if some one else does it.

THE LESSON IN A MASTER

THE TWO hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Johann Sebastian Bach, celebrated recently, came at a time when the public was better able than ever before to appreciate the work of this great musical composer, who many believe was the greatest of them all. Bach has always had his worshippers but his music has been widely assumed to be beyond the appreciation of the musically untrained. Even his own generation, and those immediately following, did not rate him at his full worth. Mendelssohn, a century later, is given credit for making the musical world understand what a great creative artist Bach was. Schumann said music owes almost as great a debt to him as a religious owes to its founder.

Lately appreciation of Bach has grown to the proportion, but not the ephemeralness, of a vogue. That is largely due to the expanding understanding and enjoyment of music. Every way we turn, music is in the air; some good, some bad, some commonplace. We hear so much of it that the commonplace palls. Only great music will stand constant repetition. So the great masters come into their own.

There is a lesson in Bach's history for those who are interested in the development of music. It took five generations of musicians to produce him. His great-grandfather, Veit Bach, is generally considered the creator of the Bach musical tradition. He was a baker and miller who played the zither to the accompaniment of his millstones. Veit's son, Hans, a carpet maker by trade, made music his profession. Hans' genius descended through his son and grandson, to Johann Sebastian, in whom it flowered most brilliantly.

It will take more than one generation to produce a musical America. But we are on our way. American talent is about to receive greater encouragement. With patience and steadiness this development can go far and fast.

The situation in Europe seems to be about normal. The cables tell us that chaos reigns.

Yet the man who ran away from home at 16 now wonders why his son of 22 is so hard to control.

When justice rules the land, the motorist with the glaring headlights will be lined up with his back to the wall in the cold gray dawn of morning.

Sir Phillip Gibbs, author of "Now it Can Be Told," has been barred from Germany, and perhaps he's fortunate, with all this business of decapitation going on.

The consumption of soap is reported to be increasing in Russia and by the time two or three more five-year plans have been completed it will probably catch up to the actual needs of the country.

"Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

GYPSY GIRL

CHAPTER 36

FOR AN HOUR Consuelo and Doug drove in silence.

"Gypsy, don't you want to tell me what's the matter?" He was serious now.

She shook her head.

Tell him about this white man who is his friend? Ah, no! Tell him this white dog has another woman and have him say, what of it, you might have known. The dog! That is why a gypsy was not good enough until she put away her gypsy clothes. That is why he is so busy and can't see me often. Little fool I am, little fool! She is his woman and she is star of the Follies. I am his woman and I am—poor, one scene, once on, not a dozen times! Ah, how I have been fooling myself. This a marble palace? This the high hill? It is a swamp, a swamp of lies!

I have been fascinated by this white man and by the gold that flows through his fingers like water. When I saw him that day beside the train he looked good to me. When I wanted to come to New York to get revenge on Marcu I thought it would be part of that revenge to give my body to him. I did not reckon that I might be only making a fool of myself.

"You're shivering, baby." Doug took off his overcoat and wrapped it around her.

But Marcu could laugh now! You sold yourself to me for a diamond and it was a piece of glass, he would say. You sold yourself to the white man for the palace on top of the hill and it was a hovel! Fool! You thought you could play this game of revenge and win. You should have stayed with the van and been my woman and danced at the country fairs and given me your purse of silver when you had finished. I would love you and I would beat you but I would not take another woman as this white dog has done.

Bitter thoughts! The girl bent her head in her hands and the tears flowed down her cheeks.

Doug's arms were about her.

"Don't cry, my darling, don't cry! Oh, gee, but I love you, Consuelo. I love you. I could kill the person who has hurt you like this!"

She did not hear him. She is his girl and she is star of the show. I am his girl and I am nothing!

Now is my heart crying out within me that I have been such a bad one. Now is my heart crying out for Girtza and the tenderness of his arms. Now is my heart crying out for the comfort of the forest and the brooks and the good cool earth beneath me. The rumble of the van—music. The sound of Roman—oh Lord! How lonesome I am. Marcu, this revenge I took upon you is bitter—bitter! I can't endure it longer!

I go back to my people tomorrow. The hope that rose within her died.

Back to the van—trailing home in shame? Marcu to kill you—or worse, to spit upon you and in spite turn his eyes upon another woman.

Anita to laugh. Papa to hide his head with pain. And you, the Gypsy Consuelo, to admit defeat! No! No! No!

You came to New York to dance. Have you forgotten that? What does this pettiness of love concern you, then? What business of yours is it that this white man has another girl? Perhaps all white men have. That is quite all right—except the fact that she stands first. How do you like that insult? You come from a line of gypsies where their women have been famed for beauty; where the highest prices have been paid for brides and the hottest gypsies have been fought over the right of a gypsy girl's smile. Are you less than these? This is a challenge flung in your face. Do not let it blind your eyes that you cannot see to fight.

This man holds for you the marble palace and no man was ever won by quarrelling—no white man. Now if he was a gypsy, you could spit on him and he would slap your lips and beat you, but then when he had finished he would take you to his tent and there would be no other woman there. But this is a white dog.

The high hill still beckons? Yes! The call to dance on top of the hill? Yes. You know her dances and her songs. You are ready to step into her place. Gypsies get what they want? Have your gypsy clothes made you into a gorgio so soon that you hesitate to take this?

This is a game. You have played games before. She said, you know, that this Stewart Blackmore was a big one behind the show—that he had the say so. Well, if he loved you well enough he could say so, couldn't he? He could say so, couldn't he?

"Consuelo, my darling, you're shivering. There's a roadhouse further on a bit. We'll stop and have something hot to eat, eh what?"

No answer. He could say so, couldn't he? "Consuelo, will you look at me? I don't know who's hurt you so, but listen, my darling, I'm for you through and through. I'm with you and I stand as much chance as a—well, anyway, my dearest, I love you." He sighed. "Well, Doug, be yourself. You can't make love to a deaf wall all night. Snap out of it and remember who's paying you and her!"

Yes, he could. The girl turned to Doug.

"Ah, my friend, you are a good one to endure this mad, crazy gypsy."

I have been dreaming bad dreams, but now I am awake. I wonder if there is nothing in life that is as you think it is?

"Little, my pet, very little. Here I'm wild about you and I thought you might kiss me and it is not as it is—"

"There you are wrong." She put her arms around him and pressed her lips to his tenderly, without passion and it was much the same as she had kissed the Dummy that day so long ago—so long—eternities—at the way man counts, only a short time.

But a tender kiss to a man in love is less than no kiss at all and tells him more than he wants to know. And Doug settled back in the seat and let his arm rest idly around her shoulders.

The next morning Stewart called Douglas over to his club to have breakfast with him. They remarked upon the market; had an eye-opener, and it was not until breakfast was served that Stewart brought up the subject that was on his mind.

"How are you getting along with Consuelo?"

"That's a personal question!" "I've asked you."

"Very well, if you feel that way about it. Fine is the answer."

"Where did you go last night?" "Say, it's a third degree!" He received no answer. He dropped the kiddyings. "She was sore about something and we drove into the country and didn't get back until sun-up. After all, you had a date with Lou."

"Know what Consuelo was sore about?"

"No."

"She didn't say anything?"

"No."

"That doesn't sound like a hot-headed gypsy!" Stewart shook his head. "Doug, I'm in a mess. She and Louie got together last night and found out about me."

Doug whistled through his teeth. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Common cabbage is said to be the most productive, for it is believed that an acre of ground will yield a greater weight of green vegetable matter in the shape of cabbage than in that of any other vegetable.

The popular notion that snakes can jump off the ground is erroneous; no snake can leap entirely from the ground.

Editorial Of The Day

FRIEND OF THE DARK ANGEL (Madison County Press)

The average motorist, however modest he may be in other respects, becomes an egomaniac as soon as he takes the wheel of his car.

He believes that traffic regulations should be rigidly enforced—so far as other drivers are concerned—but that he should be an exception to the rule. John Jones should be forced to keep down to 20 or 30 miles an hour—but he, whose abilities are hardly second to those of Sir Malcolm Campbell, can be trusted to drive as fast as he pleases.

The accident statistics demonstrate how tragically wrong this average motorist is. Nine out of ten accidents occurring last year were directly the fault of drivers or pedestrians. In only one out of ten was the mechanical condition of the car to blame. And in the overwhelming majority of instances the factor that led to the mishap was excessive speed. The best proof of that lies in the fact that the rate of death per accident on highways—where speeds are naturally higher than on streets—was more than 100 per cent greater than the average for all accidents combined. In city accidents, the rate of death per accident was 52 per cent worse between intersections, where motorists—speed up, than at intersections, where the bulk of drivers instinctively slow down.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS

THREE INRESTING hands with inquiries are given today. The first comes from Akron, Ohio. Bidding on the hand shown below went: South (fourth hand), 1-Club; North, 2-Spades, to force; South, 6-Spades, as that is his second biddable suit; North, 7-Clubs; South, 7-Spades. West, doubled. The question is, what should East lead? He led the 8 of spades, and West "only smiled."

I cannot imagine a worse lead having the K-J of diamonds East should not lead that. His choice had to be between leading hearts or clubs. As West doubled after hearing clubs bid, and as a grand slam was bid in the latter suit, I wonder that East did not suspect that his partner might be void of clubs, and lead the suit.

The second inquiry and hand are from Santa Monica, Cal. The inquiry is whether spades or hearts should be the final call. South must make an opening bid of 1-Heart, which his partner must shift to 1-Spade. After which sound bidding may vary. South may shift to 2-No Trumps, support spades or

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE FINAL step in summing up the diagnosis of a particular individual is to try to decide what his functional capacity is. Most diagnosis is anatomical.

We say that the heart is enlarged, the valves are damaged, or that the thyroid gland is diseased, or that there is a stone in the kidney, etc., but the greatest refinement comes in deciding how much work this damaged organ can do. We know that a badly damaged heart may serve its owner for many years.

Everyone knows of such cases. We find hearts at an autopsy so diseased that it is a matter of marvel that the man could have lived at all, and yet he did, doing a fair amount of work.

The decision as to this functional capacity or, in other words, the physiological diagnosis, has depended in the past largely upon the clinical judgment and experience of the physician, but we are finding methods of exact measurement which bid fair to be increasingly important. Measurement is the final test of science, and no science made much growth until it began to have standards of measurement.

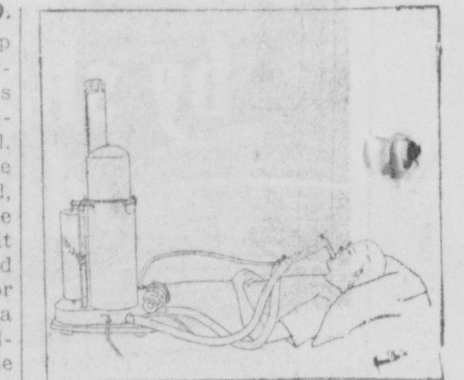

Thus, I received the other day, a report of the young army surgeon who took care of Napoleon at St. Helena during his last illness. He records that the Emperor's body heat was high or low, but he gave no exact measurements because the clinical thermometer had not yet been perfected.

A heavy foot on the throttle is the best friend the Dark Angel

Another method of physiologic examination is that of the irregularities of the pulse and the integrity of the conduction system of a heart muscle. This is done by a delicate indicator of galvanic electricity called the "electrocardiograph."

A tracing of the heart's action can be made upon a roll of photographic film so that an extremely good idea of what is taking place inside the heart can be obtained.

By still other methods, more or less chemical in nature, we are able to judge the functional capacity of the kidneys and of the liver.

Method of measuring basal metabolism.

ing instruments from the physiological laboratory for the purpose of making these more exact measurements of functional capacity. One of the first that we borrowed was the blood pressure apparatus. Another recent one was the apparatus for measuring basal metabolism. Basal metabolism is the total energy exchange of the body, and is measured by the amount of oxygen which it consumes per square area of body surface. We have found, especially in activity of the thyroid gland, that the basal metabolism is high, and that when it degenerates the basal metabolism is low. This is true because the thyroid is the regulator of energy exchange.

Another method of physiologic examination is that of the irregularities of the pulse and the integrity of the conduction system of a heart muscle. This is done by a delicate indicator of galvanic electricity called the "electrocardiograph."

A tracing of the heart's action can be made upon a roll of photographic film so that an extremely good idea of what is taking place inside the heart can be obtained.

REC LOOP TO BEGIN MAY 6; LYNCH NAMED

May Limit League to Six Teams Unless Eight Are Listed By April 25

The recreation ball league will swing into action Monday, May 6, provided it has not snowed out by that time. Several persons who intend to operate teams, attended a meeting in The Herald office Monday evening and fixed dates, named officers, established an entrance fee and did other things which will be of importance through the year.

Frank A. Lynch was re-elected president and George E. Hammel was again named secretary-treasurer.

April 25 is an importance date in the league set-up.

April 25 Deadline
All persons desiring to back teams must have their entrance fees and names of their teams in the hands of Hammel by that date to get a franchise. The entrance fee was again set at $5 and Joe Glitt, who is running the Glitt grocery team, has already paid his five iron men into the treasury.

A meeting has been set for April 22 next Monday with another meeting on the 25th. A definite lineup for the league should be known at that time.

Another ruling which should have a decided effect on the league in this: Any out-of-town athlete working in Circleville is eligible to participate providing he started his work on or before April 25. He must have regular employment. This rule was adopted to prevent a recurrence of the same trouble that disrupted things last summer.

Cite Walker Case

The ruling means that no league team can add a player who lives outside the city limits unless he is employed in town. For instance, last summer Art Walker, Fox post office clerk, joined the Contender corporation team and never worked there although the rule called for him to do so. He later left that team and joined the Circleville Oils. He was given work by G. I. Nickerson to make his eligibility. This year Walker, no longer eligible, can play unless he is employed at a regular job on or before April 25.

A new ball will be used this year. It will be a 12-incher but will have no raised seams. Longer hits and a speedier game will probably result from this action.

At the meeting Monday only three teams definitely declared themselves in the league. They are the Circleville Oils, Glitt's Grocery and Jones' Sports, formerly the Given Oil team. It was said that the Maces would undoubtedly back a team and so would the Purina mill with a team also. The entered comprised of Contender corporation athletes although the C. C. of A. name would not be used.

May Limit to Six

League officials plan to limit the league to only six teams providing only that many are enrolled.

3 State Squads Booked at Home

COLUMBUS, April 16.—Approximately 50,000 Ohioans today forgot their troubles and worries as they prepared to answer to the annual line of baseball's opening day of the season which will be marked by three contests in Ohio.

A fourth Ohio team will go to St. Louis for its debut. Uniquely, two of the state's teams will start the campaign today with hopes of ending up in Pennsylvania. They were the Cleveland Indians, who are hoping to fly an American league flag, and the Columbus Red Birds who hope to repeat as American Association champions.

The other two Ohio teams, the Cincinnati Reds and the Toledo Mud Hens, have little pennant prospects but both are counting revamped teams and promise to end up in a higher position than they did last year. That was said to be particularly true of the Cincinnati squad.

Crowds Expected

Despite the chill temperatures brought on by yesterday's blizzard which left patches of snow on some diamonds, large crowds were expected to turn out for the opener. Cincinnati expected 30,000 fans for its inaugural and 15,000 fans were prepared to storm the Columbus ballpark. The Toledo Mud Hens, however, probably will be lucky to draw 5,000.

The lineup of games in Ohio today was:

Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.
Indianapolis at Columbus.
Louisville at Toledo.
Cleveland at St. Louis.

All of the games will be marked by flag raising ceremonies and other celebrations. In Columbus, a street parade was planned, and St. Paul employees were promised an afternoon by Gov. Davey if the governor said, their grandmothers are suddenly stricken with illness.

Weather Cold

The only adverse condition for a good day was the weather, but temperatures were expected to slowly rise throughout the day. It probably still will be downright chilly at game time however, and overcoats and furs will be the order of the day.

18 SCHOOLS ENTER MANSFIELD RELAYS

MANSFIELD, April 16.—Eighteen schools had sent in their entries today for the annual relay meet to be held at the Mansfield high school Saturday.

Included in the first entries are eight schools from greater Cleveland, as well as Toledo South, 1921 winner and defending champion.

Harry Michels, relay manager, announced today that Ohio State University has donated the team trophy for the meet. The trophy will be rotated going to the winner each year.

Entries to date include: East Tech, East, Collinwood, John Marshall, Cathedral, Loric, Central, Shaker Heights, and John Ford, all of Greater Cleveland, and St. Paul, Salem, Central, McKinley, Toledo, St. Vibes, Akron, Garfield, Toledo Woodward, Ashtabula, Toledo, Lima Central and Northland.

18 GET LETTERS

COLUMBUS, April 16.—L. W. St. John, athletic director at Ohio State University, announced today that 18 varsity letters had been awarded to athletes participating in fall and winter sports.

Members of the board and those receiving awards were: Charles Black and Walker Graham, Dayton; Or Leonard, Dayton; George, Beulah, Dayton; and John, Columbus; Arthur, Dayton; John, O. Leonard, Dayton; Louis, Dayton; Clark, Van Wert; and Vern, Hilder, Mansfield.

Five members of the board also received letters today. They are: Bill at Capital and Port Charles, Youngstown; Lillian, Akron; Brookline, N. Y.; Gordon, Akron; Mansfield; and Robert, Voss, Fremont.

OKED SOUGHT FOR 4 MAJOR RING BATTLES

Ambers-Canzoneri to Fight for Ross' Vacated Lightweight
Crown

NEW YORK, April 16.—The New York Boxing Commission today will be asked to approve and assign dates for a million dollar worth of fights. These, with the ones they are expected to draw, are:

James J. Braddock vs. Max Baer, $200,000.

Earl Ambers vs. Tony Canzoneri, $50,000.

Barney Ross vs. Jimmy McLarnin, $250,000.

Primo Carnera vs. Joe Louis, $500,000.

Total, $1,000,000.

The first two will be staged by Madison Square Garden; the others by the Twentieth Century Sporting club.

Baer will defend his heavyweight title in the Garden's Long Island bowl, probably June 13. Ambers and Canzoneri will fight for the lightweight throne vacated yesterday by Barney Ross in the garden itself May 10. The other fights will be held in the local ball parks. Ross may fight McLarnin at a late June date and Carnera battle Louis May 28. The commission will settle these matters.

The 20th Century has its two fights in the bag; the Garden is still haggling over what it terms "petty larceny" items, that is, "alcohol fares and meals, involving only a few hundred dollars."

When Ross announced yesterday that he could no longer make the lightweight limit, Mike Jacobs, who is the 20th Century club, immediately offered to stage a lightweight elimination tournament with Ambers, Canzoneri, Len Del Genio, Davey Day and Frankie Kluck contesting, and devote all the profits to the National Sports Alliance.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Wilson to Cincinnati?

The Cincinnati Enquirer insists the Reds are to get Charlie Wilson, temperamental Cardinal athlete who starred last year with Columbus. He'd be mighty well come again in a Red Bird uniform. Lew Riggs and Billy Myers were scheduled to be in the Redler starting lineup today. Tony Freitas, former AA player with St. Paul, was to hurl for the Reds against the veteran Waite Hoyt. The Braves are great for picking up relics; first they take Babe Ruth and now Larry Benton has joined the squad.

Drill New Rules

Coach Hal Olsen, of Ohio State's cage squad, is rushing his work—his hopefuls for next year's team have been drilling using the new rules as approved by the national coaching association. The Buckeyes look for a great team next year—Don't they always.

Weather Handicap

The high school baseball and golf teams are having a hard time of it. The baseball game with Stoughtonville last week was rained out and additional inclement weather has prevented the golfers from getting in their holes. Even trackmen who are supposed to be immune to bad weather have been feeling the strain of elements, especially if they were stuck in practice Monday and Tuesday.

Play Anniversary

Because the Buckeye football star late Athletic conference now in its tenth year of life plans on being made to stage a tenth anniversary celebration at Athens May 24 and 25 when the Buckeye holds its annual track and field meet at Ohio university. Coach Bill Herbert of the Bohart school will announce to meet and plan the celebration features.

Both Contenders

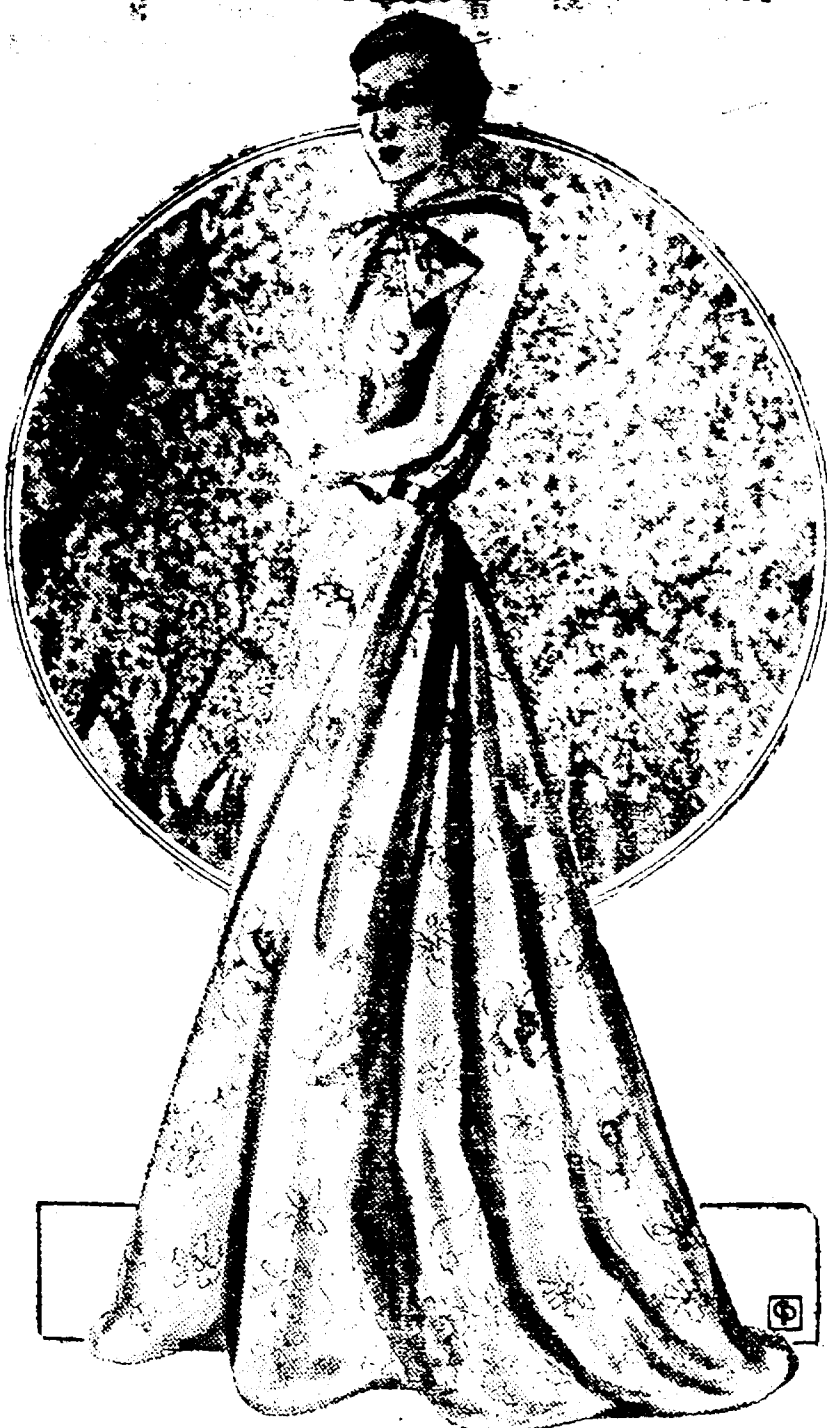

Ohio U. and Wesleyan showed last week that they will be contenders for the MIAA title. The Bobcats won 72-58 by taking practically all the field events—Howard White led the Bishops in the speed efforts but couldn't carry the whole load himself.

A Suggestion

Thanks to the following note was received at this desk today:

"Why don't you go before the board of education and suggest your plan suggested last week to make the new coach, if there is going to be one, a full-time coach with no classes to teach? It is a step in the right direction to take." Well, Wisher.

ANNUALS such as blue Centaurea and clooms, seed themselves quite abundantly and the seedlings will be found in the beds where these annuals were planted last year. If in quantity, thin out by increasing the size of the bed or moving to another portion of the garden.

DORGER DISBARRED

CINCINNATI, April 16.—Frank J. Dorgier, missing from his home, has been suspended from the practice of law by a court of common pleas judges. His son, Clarence A., was previously suspended. The Dorgiers are on parole from the Ohio prison on a bank fraud conviction.

"Only Child" Superior

Psychologists find that the "only child," aged five, in a family is apt to be superior in health, intelligence, play habits and other points, as compared with a child of five who has brothers or sisters.

Annuals

ANNUALS such as blue Centaurea and cleome, seed themselves quite abundantly and the seedlings will be found in the beds where these annuals were planted last year. If in quantity, thin out by increasing the size of the bed or moving to another portion of the garden.

SALPIGLOSSIS is not only attractive in the garden but it is especially desirable as cut flowers. Sow the seeds where the plants are to flower.

THE HOT WEATHER puts a stop to the flowering of sweet peas so that early planting is desirable so as to have an abundance of blooms before the hot days come. Plant some early varieties as there is over a month between the early and late flowering.

WHEN Chrysanthemums are beginning to bud they need a lot of water. A light application of garden fertilizer worked into the soil will also help the quality of the blooms.

BE SURE to include petunias in your garden. They are one of the few nearly fool-proof plants blooming freely under almost any garden conditions.

ZINNIAS are warm weather plants and must be sown in warm soil. Best results are obtained by sowing the seeds in the ground where the plants are to flower.

THE SELECTION of varieties of stocks for planting depends upon the purpose. If for cut flowers, the branching varieties are the best. Ten Week Stocks are the best varieties for bedding purposes.

THE BRILLIANCE of Poppies is not surpassed by any other annual and they will add brilliancy to the color of your garden. They fit in nicely between the June perennials and the later annuals.

POPPY SEED is exceptionally fine. A convenient method of planting is to mix the seed with about six times the quantity of very fine sand. Sow while the ground is damp. Any surplus should be destroyed for they will not stand transplanting.

COLUMBUS, April 16—Both wets and dries had witnesses today at the polls in Linden while local option balloting was taking place. Two other Franklin-co communities, Westerville and Upper Arlington, have already voted dry under the local option law.

J. P. SUEDE

COLUMBUS, April 16—Ralph Snyder, Pleasant-twp., has filed suit for $10,000 in Franklin-co courts against Justice of the Peace William Welvin, also of Pleasant-twp., charging he was unlawfully detained in the squire's court.

Plea For Peace Contest Winner

Following is the oration delivered at Williamsport last Friday evening by Thomas Adams, of Pickaway township. His presentation was named the best in the county oratorical.

We, the people of the United States, are now suffering from the turmoil of our last war. People are trying, to pull themselves from under the burden of poverty and pauperism while some are sinking deeper into that pit of doom. Little children are sick and ragged while their little stomachs are tied in knots of pain for the want of food. That is the cause of war, that is why we ask for peace. We, the younger people do the fighting, we wade through the mud, we are shot and feel the cursed bullets as they pierce on in their search for a human life, and yet we have nothing to say in the making of war. The older people and big business men declare war and vote for war, letting us do the fighting while they sit back and let the dollars roll into their pockets. That is one of the many reasons we ask for peace.

The horrors of war are blood-curdling. If we the people of the world could see, hear and realize the horrors of war we would all be on our knees praying for peace, so that our young people will never have to sacrifice their lives upon the altar of war.

There are deadly gases that kill at a touch. One that will go into the ground 500 feet and penetrate every object that it touches. There is no escaping it, with airplanes to drop bombs and destroy towns and all means of living.

We will take an instance of a soldier boy enlisting in the army. He goes and fights, braving every obstacle and going ahead at the best of his ability until he is shot down in his tracks. The bells will then toll for him:

Toll, let the great bells toll
Till the clashing air is dim
Did we wrong this parting soul?
We will make it up to him.

Toll, let him never guess
What work we set him to Laurel, Laurel yes
He did what we bade him do.

Praise, and never a whispered hint but the fight he fought was good.

Never a word that the blood on his sword was his country's own hearts-blood.

This is what the soldier boy gets for all of his fighting for his country. No praise, no blessings, nothing but death and the loss of loved ones.

War is nothing but a barbarian attitude of the people. Why can't they see that it is a cursed affair? Because they have only eyes for money and conquest. What can we do about it? Practically nothing, until the hearts of the nations turn from the sin of barbarism and be converted to the attitude of peace.

In Germany we have Hitler's Nazi; in Italy, Mussolini's Black Shirts; and in Russia, Stalin Fascists. Throughout the world we hear of men being trained to fight, of quarrels between countries, and worse of all we hear of the cruelties of the next war. But how can we expect to hear of anything else when there are things such as fear, distrust, hatred, and jealousy between countries? To have World Peace these things must be overcome. But how can this, when the United States will not trust her fellow nations and start World Peace? These things must all be overcome before we will ever have World Peace.

band in the war and has had the burden of rearing a family. She must work, sweat and drag on to her utter most. She must toil until the lines in her face become deeper; her hair gray and her system a nervous wreck, while her children are without a father's guiding hand, to which every child is entitled. Today the cold finger of death points directly at the young men of the world. Young man, today you may be asked to sacrifice your life in a great political and financial machine. While bidding you goodbye they will say, "there goes a brave young man to defend his country." Remember this, nine times out of ten you are merely going to defend some Wall Street broker's banking interests in Europe, coffee plantations in South America or oil wells in Asia. Because of the power of wealth, the rich man becomes your lord and master and you are compelled to do his bidding.

In Flanders field the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row
That mark our place, and in the sky
The lark still bravely singing flies
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.
We are dead,
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn
Saw sunset glow.
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Field.

I have no prejudice against war as a protection to our country and its people. If all nations felt the same there would be no war. All countries should love their fellow-nations and not try to invade them.

Over all these questions of Peace, I ask you this question. "Has the world its right mind or has it gone insane by a diseased brain that disease the love for money, and the desire for conquest?"

Dr. Alexander Grant Ruthven

Declaring there will be no more "pervasive" anti-war demonstrations on the campus, President Alexander Grant Ruthven, above, of the University of Michigan, said disciplinary action was in the making for students "who are known to have interfered with the proper conduct of university affairs."
